SHOULD RECONSIDER.

Fiscal Court should Annul Part of This Year's Levy.

The Fiscal Court in April 1896 levied 30 cents on the $100 for the maintenance of free turnpikes.

The collection of that part of the levy was enjoined.

The Court of Appeals has now decided that that tax shall be collected.

The Fiscal Court in April 1896 also levied a tax of 20 cents on the $100 for free turnpikes.

This would make a tax of 40 cents on the $100 to be collected this year.

The LEADER respectfully suggests to the Honorable Court and its members that there be a special term, and that the levy of 30 cents for this year be rescinded.

The times are hard;

Most of the taxpayers are, already strained;

The friends of free pikes desire to be generous;

And that there may be no unnecessary burden on the people Tax LEADERS hopes the Court will so far revise its action as to collect only 30 cents this year, which will yield ample for the work now in hand.

Next year we may be called upon to purchase some of the main pikes; but we are hoping for better times with greater ability to pay them.

A SAD ACCIDENT.

Little Joseph Haulman Drowned Saturday Morning.

A sad accident which cost the life of a bright little fellow happened Saturday morning about 10 o'clock.

Harry and Joseph Haulman, the two oldest sons of Mr. Harry Haulman, were at the river that morning playing around the raft of logs belonging to W. B. Mathews & Co.

Joseph, the youngest, attempted to jump from one log to another that was loose, and in striking the log caused it to turn, throwing the little fellow into the river.

He sank and never arose again until taken out twenty minutes later a corpse.

He was about 7 years old and an exceedingly bright little fellow, and the sympathy of the entire community goes out to the stricken parents.

The funeral was held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 at the house, Rev. J. S. Sims conducting the service, the remains being interred in the Mayville Cemetery.

A peculiarity and feature is the fact that just a year ago Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Haulman buried a son.

THE NATION'S DEAD

How "Memorial Day" Was Observed in Mayville.

J. P. McCARTNEY'S ADDRESS.

An Immense Throng Participates in the Impressive Ceremonies.

THE BLUE AND THE GRAY.

Memorial Day was more generally observed in Mayville than on any former occasion.

The National colors were displayed on every side, the Federal offices, the banks and a number of business houses closed at noon, and the living gave themselves largely to the sad duty of remembering the dead.

In the forenoon a delegation from Joseph Heiler Past, G. A. R., went to Washington and decorated the graves of the soldiers who sleep in the Catholic Cemetery there, while others joined Bailey Post of Aberdeen in paying tribute to their dead.

In the afternoon the G. A. R., headed by Haucke & Band, marched to the Cemetery, where the ritualistic exercises were performed at the Monument, the graves of the soldiers were strewn with flowers, after which the audience repaired to Dietrich's Park, where Hon. John P. McCartney delivered the Memorial Address.

Mr. McCartney, who was introduced by Mr. Thomas A. Davis, spoke as follows:

ADDRESS OF HON. JOHN P. McCARTNEY.

For those who fought and those who fell in defense of the Union, there will ever be the gratitude of a mighty people. For the living, the tender solicitude and guardian care of the Republic. For the dead, hallowed names, whose memory is a monument enduring as time, erected in the hearts of the people.

Republicans are not ungrateful. Often has it been said that Republicans are ungrateful of the services of those who risked all for the sake of their country, but for all such statements the Nation does not forget. The fancies of the people lightly change in the rapid progress of events, as each day brings with it new thoughts, new ideas, new leaders. Sentiments change, parties rise and fall. Like the shifting scenes in a panorama, current events are ever passing. Yet these are the events of the day or the year, that live their short life and are forgotten. It is different with the events that make history and stamp themselves indelibly on the face of time. Republicans are not ungrateful when the occasion comes. Like a mighty instrument of music long silent, that wakes when the hand of a master touches the keys and fills the air with melody divine, the great heart of the people responds when touched with sublime heroism. To die for one's country is a noble death. Ah, no, thousands of years have passed, yet those who died at Thermopylae are living in history's pages as though it were yesterday. Heroes who die for their country belong to the ages. Time touches lightly patriotic deeds, and then to glorify rather than diminish. Shall Gettysburg be forgotten, or the Wilderness Campaign? Shall a thousand deaths of valor on the hard fought fields disappear? It cannot be. Waves in the pages of history, continued in lines of graceful poetry, written in the National music of the Republic, embalm in song and story, each year will add luster to the deeds of those who fought that the Union might remain one and indivisible. Marble columns rise, wonderful works of artistic fancy, to testify to the soldier dead. Statues of bronze and paintings that appeal to the passer-by tell the story of their deeds of daring. It is the custom of civilized Nations to so honor their dead. It is true in this land of ours, but in our land year by year has grown a custom more beautiful, more tender and expressive than any testimonial art can rear.

The mind cannot conceive anything more beautiful and expressive than the Nation's tribute on Memorial Day to her warrior dead. It was an inspiration, for it says all the Nations, "Majesty may crumble and metal may rust, but the soldier dead of this Republic have erected in the hearts of the people a monument for all time."

For those who lived amid the war's storms, it is a day of tender memories.

For the generation since the war, a reminder of the tremendous cost of National existence.

What brought the conflict on, or why the Nation was torn and shattered by the stern necessities of war, can matter but little in these days when we dwell together a harmonious people, proud of the Nation and its progress.

Enough to know that civilization was blecked in its onward movement by that which was foreign to the genius of our institutions, and slavery disappeared as a relic of the dark ages in the triumphant march of progress and enlightened civilization.

Whenever in the progress of the world's custom or a law or right, which seems inherent in the people, has served its time or is obnoxious to civilization, it is bound to go. Sometime in peaceful revolution, but more often by war.

When it is civil war it is doubly terrible, but out of it progress is made and the world at large made better through the sacrifice. The war has a necessity. Often availed it could not be stayed.

Compensatory measures failed. It was the inevitable, but out of the storm of bitterness, sorrow, hate, suffering and death the Nation has arisen under changed conditions, mightier today than before, more strongly united in its bond of Union and the foremost factor in the world's civilization.

Those living today who passed through that tremendous drama in the country's history appreciate what the war meant in fullest measure. They heard of its glories, but knew its sorrows. It was not so much the stirring times and the prospect of fame, it was not the pay of the soldier, but patriotism in its highest sense that made it possible year after year to fill the ranks with determined men.

To the survivors of those days it must be pleasant to look out upon the land and see what their efforts have wrought. No vast standing armies or vast armaments of the people. Conscience in the strength of its citizen soldiery, but out of the storm of bitterness, sorrow, hate, suffering and death the Nation rests serene while Europe groans under the debts made in support of vast armies. Instead of two Nations with standing armies along the borders North and South we have accepted the results of our war and have had in concert a reunited people. In the graves where sleep the dead, brave men in Blue, brave men in Gray, let the armies gloried with the war be buried, and on this day, when the earth is clothed with its richest grass, and all nature is rejoicing, let kindly feeling prevail. Time with its softening influences has smoothed the hard and bitter feelings, let there be only memories hallowed by the passing years remaining for the beautiful rituals of today are symbolic only of love and tenderness.

To those of us who belong to the generation since the war, it is known only in story or tradition or from the printed page of our history. Time has been the story of its horrors, and while we read of splendid deeds of valor on the tented field, and in imagination follow the passing regiments in history's pages we see fields fought and won, we know and are proud of the valor of the men who fought, but the beautiful rituals of today are symbolic only of love and tenderness.

War is magnificent. Somewhere in human nature there is a sentiment that civilization cannot eliminate, that causes the pulse of man to beat with greater speed and sends the blood bounding through his veins in quick motion when the sound of martial music is heard. Somewhere in human nature there is a sentiment that causes man to take a stern joy in strife. So men go to war and amid its stirring scenes heroes spring into action who otherwise might have passed their lives in useless existence.

War is magnificent. So doubtless thought the soldiers of the Civil War as the regiments marched away with the new flags and drums beating to do their part in the field of action.

War is magnificent. So doubtless thought the maidens as the regiments swept by on parade clad in the gorgeous panoply of the day. How glad were the soldier's breast. In imagination glorious deeds were to be performed, honor, fame and rank was a part of the glorious vision of those united in action. The war was to end in sixty days and all was action, and the maidens were to be married at home waited for the day when with flying banners the regiments would come gaily marching home.

War is terrible. The days went by, and the years. No more the gaily marching columns. Stern, breaded, war was men walked in the ranks. War is death. Sentiment disappeared. No longer the dream of a summer holiday in the field and then home, but a struggle for life, for home, for National existence.

DEMOCRATIC CONVENTION.

Mason County's 13 Votes Will Be Cast By Goldwyns

The Democrats of Mason met at the Courthouse Saturday afternoon to select delegates to the State Convention which meets at Lexington Wednesday.

Hon. R. B. Lovel was named for Chairman by the sound money men, and the quicksilverers put up Hon. A. P. Gooding.

A vote by tellers disclosed 475 for Lovel, and only 58 for Gooding.

"That settled it!"

And then the goldbugs resolved that Grover was great.

That Johnny Carlisle was a daisy and ought to be President.

That Governor Bailey hadn't oughter had called out the troops.

And finally—

Resolved, That we declare it to be the duty of every Democrat and true American to submit to the will of the majority, and we pledge ourselves to support the nominees of the Chicago Convention without regard to ratio or standard.

Mr. James N. Keboe was recommended for Delegate to Chicago.

Eighty-one sound money men were elected Delegates to the Lexington Convention, and instructed to vote as a unit—the vote to be cast by those present only in person.

This is the way the Ninth Congressional District lined up on the money question in Saturday's Conventions:

Sound Money.	Free Silver.
Bracken.....	7
Bath.....	7
Boyd.....	7
Carter.....	7

Greenup.....	6
Harrison.....	11
Lewis.....	2
Lawrence.....	9
Mason.....	13

Robertson.....	3

Total.....	18 75

The figures from the entire state indicate that the Lexington Convention will contain 300 free silver allies against 300 representatives of an honest dollar.

A number of members of George B. Bailey Post of Aberdeen came over Saturday afternoon and joined the Mayville G. A. R.'s in Memorial exercises.

If it required an annual outlay of $100 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel complaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents, that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of this remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by J. J. Wood, Druggist.

OUR BASEBALL MAN

WHAT HE SAYS OF THE NATIONAL GAME.

Saturday morning the Locals and Pennsylvanias played their third game of the series, which resulted in an easy victory for the Mayville team.

Wadsworth and Hiltner did the pitching for our boys, Kellner the catching and all together used the stick.

The game was not an interesting one, it being too much one-sided, as the score will show.

Mr. Leander Cox, who was injured Saturday at the Ball Park, was a narrow escape from losing an eye. He was riding a bicycle, and in attempting to make one of the curves in the track the wheel slipped from under him, throwing him against the fence, breaking the collar bone, while his face struck the fence and a protruding nail, tearing a gash about an inch above the left eye and scratching him pretty badly. He is now resting as comfortably as possible.

Mr. Leander Cox, who was injured Saturday at the Ball Park, was a narrow escape from losing an eye. He was riding a bicycle, and in attempting to make one of the curves in the track the wheel slipped from under him, throwing him against the fence, breaking the collar bone, while his face struck the fence and a protruding nail, tearing a gash about an inch above the left eye and scratching him pretty badly. He is now resting as comfortably as possible.

In fact, this is the first of a series of ailments to which the office man is liable. The "Pleasant Pills" are a tiny, sugar-coated granule. They will perfectly cure the worst case of constipation and indigestion. If the druggist tries to sell you some other pill that says his granule pill, just think of what will best pay you.

Mr. James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich., was severely affected with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by J. James Wood, Druggist.
